

UPA

American Studies

Landmark Briefs and Arguments of the Supreme Court of the United States: Constitutional Law

Trace the source of America's most important constitutional principles, the modifications and glosses which judges put on arguments presented to them by leading lawyers, and follow the evolution of legal principles and of constitutional doctrines from their origins in law offices and courtrooms to the crystallization in formal decisions.

UPA's Landmark series is an easy-to-use resource for the study of the entire spectrum of American life presented before the U.S. Supreme Court. With it, researchers can have all the arguments presented to the Court in the nation's most important cases.

Expertly selected by distinguished legal scholars, the cases presented in Landmark Briefs and Arguments vividly show the Court as a forum for debate on a multitude of divisive issues for over 200 years. Researchers in a wide array of disciplines from history to economics to sociology can use Landmark Briefs and Arguments to:

- Learn the arguments that influences the justice's decisions
- Discover incisive commentary and keen insights on opposing principles, clashing ideals, and conflicting points of law
- Get insights on how the United States developed legally, politically, socially and economically.

For colleges, public libraries, and law schools

More than a legal resource, the Landmark series is a basic research source, a key to understanding the Supreme Court and its role in American government and society. For studies of the contemporary issues of longstanding controversy or constitutional interest, the Landmark series reveals the unique and historic nature of the Supreme Court cases that have shaped and reshaped American life and law. Virtually every significant topic in American judicial history is represented in Landmark Briefs and Arguments. Topics covered in recently available editions and the forthcoming edition include freedom of speech issues, punitive damages, abortion law, right to die, separation of church and state, affirmative action, issues of religious freedom, racial discrimination, and more.

Other important topics in American history covered in the series include:

- Banking
- Federal interstate commerce powers
- Capital punishment
- Civil Rights
- Confidentiality of news sources
- Due process
- Elections
- Campaign finance
- Equal protection
- Regulatory activities
- Federal interstate commerce powers
- Foreign affairs
- Immigration
- Judicial review
- Housing
- Legislative apportionment
- Native American issues
- Public lands
- Obscenity
- Powers of Congress
- Presidential powers
- Right to counsel
- Regulation of business and labor
- School busing
- Searches and seizures
- Self-incrimination
- Sex discrimination
- States' rights
- Welfare
- Wiretapping
- Terrorist activities

Deluxe editions reproduced from original sources

The Landmark series consists of hardbound volumes with gold-stamped lettering on the spine, and containing approximately 750 pages. A table of contents lists the cases included in the volume and the briefs and arguments presented in each case.

The briefs are facsimile reproductions of the briefs that were filed at the Supreme Court and contain the plaintiffs' and respondents' main arguments, plus the amicus curiae arguments. Except for the omission of appendices and certificates of service, they have been printed in their entirety. The sources of the oral arguments are the transcripts at the Supreme Court Library.

In addition to the briefs and oral arguments, Landmark includes petitions for writ of certiorari, which request the Court to hear a case; supplemental memoranda submitted to update or expand on a brief; motions to affirm, requesting oral responses to points made by the opposing attorney or addressing concerns voiced from the bench.

The pagination of the original documents has been retained. Additionally continuous pagination has been added in the margins of each page.

Cases selected by distinguished legal scholars

Gerhard Casper and Kathleen M. Sullivan are the general editors for the Landmark series.

Gerhard Casper, named president of Stanford University in 1992, also holds appointment there as a professor of law. He came to Stanford from the University of Chicago, where he taught law since 1996, serving as dean of the law school for eleven years and as provost of the university since 1989. From 1977 to 1991 he was coeditor of The Supreme Court report.

Kathleen M. Sullivan, Dean of Stanford Law School and Richard E. Lang Professor of Law and Stanley Morrison Professor of Law. She came to Stanford from Harvard University, where she taught constitutional law since 1984. From 1982 through 1984, Dr. Sullivan held a litigation practice in Boston (appellate constitutional law and criminal defense).

Please contact Customer Service at 1-800-638-8380 for details.

For more information, contact your sales representative or visit www.lexisnexis.com/academic