SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The U.S. State Department Central Files are the definitive source of American diplomatic reporting on political, military, social, and economic developments throughout the world in the twentieth century. This edition consists of the Central Files for Palestine-Israel for the period between February 1963 and 1966. The files are arranged according to the State Department Records Classification System, February 1963–1973. The subjects from the classification system included in this edition are AID (Foreign Economic Assistance), CSM (Communism), DEF (Defense Affairs), INT (Intelligence), and POL (Political Affairs and Relations). This collection consists generally of cables and letters sent and received by U.S. diplomats and embassy personnel; reports on meetings between U.S. and foreign government officials and leaders; newspaper clippings and translations from journals and newspapers; transcripts of speeches; and reports and observations on political, military, and economic affairs.

This collection begins with a small series of AID documents relating to U.S. Public Law 480, also known as Food for Peace. This program allows the donation of food commodities to various countries and was created to ensure a lasting, worldwide peace. Most of the information in this section focuses on the management of the Food for Peace program, but some of the documents contain information on foreign direct investment and other aid based programs. Following the AID documents, the collection's focus shifts to Communist parties in Israel and the general spread of communism. While the CSM section is very small, the documents address the impact of the Sino-Soviet split on the Israeli Communist Party. These documents not only outline the actions of the Communists, they also provide insight into the concerns of the U.S. government and its devotion to limiting the spread of communism.

Following the CSM section, the section on Defense Affairs begins. The documents in this section address the status and fitness of the Israeli Defense Force (IDF). A large portion of this section deals with the nuclear reactor at Dimona in Israel. The official position of the Israeli government, even today, is neither to confirm nor deny the existence of nuclear weapons; however, the documents in this section leave little ambiguity concerning their existence. These documents outline the concerns of the United States regarding the existence of these weapons and also the concern that this program would lead to a nuclear buildup in the Middle East. Following the information on Dimona, the focus of the collection shifts to military assistance, including assistance to Israel and assistance provided by Israel to other countries. The largest portion of the DEF section outlines the amount of military assistance and equipment supplied to Israel. The United States provided most of the weapons, with Britain and France contributing much smaller amounts. Many of the weapons provided by the United States were laundered through other countries, thus allowing the United States to maintain important contacts within the Arab world while supporting Israel. Other documents contain Israeli appeals for improved or new weapons, but the United States declined in most cases to provide the most advanced weapons, citing a national interest in preventing an arms race in the region.

The largest section of the collection is the Political Affairs and Relations (POL) section. These documents address most conceivable issues, not only resignations in the government and public works programs, but also the reassignment of ambassadors and violations of the armistices between Israel and its neighbors. One of the first issues to arise in this section is the diversion of water from the Jordan River. This issue arises throughout the collection and continues to be a point of friction today. Most of the documents pertain to the Israeli position on the diversion, specifically focusing on the need for the water, and the responses from Jordan, mainly the belief that the Israeli actions were illegal. The later reels of this collection begin to cover the relationship between Israel and the other countries of the Middle East. During the years of this collection, Israel was at war with Jordan, Egypt, Syria, and Lebanon. In most cases there was no outright combat, but in each case an armistice was in place between these countries, an indicator that a state of war existed. A large portion of the documents relate to the Mixed Armistice Commissions. Representatives of each belligerent party composed the commissions and they addressed the concerns arising on their respective armistice lines. Another large portion of these documents relate to the internal political situation in Israel. These documents include assessments of internal political parties and discussions of Israeli national and international policy.

The final reels of this collection cover the political situation in Palestine. Many of the documents in this section do not pertain directly to Palestine; instead they focus on armistice agreements between Israel and Arab countries. The documents that actually pertain to Palestine contain information about Palestinian refugees and their status in other countries. These documents discuss the various organizations that claim to represent the Palestinian people, including the PLO and other nationalist organizations.

In the Subject Index, as in the Reel Index, LexisNexis has made every effort to transliterate the proper name of any organization or person. Because organization names change with time LexisNexis has used the current name for the organization. During the years of this collection, the Israeli Labour Party was commonly known as Mapai. The reader will find an entry for Mapai in the Subject Index, but the name used in the guide is Mifleget Ha'Avoda Halsra'elit, the current full name of the Israeli Labour Party. LexisNexis has applied this rule to Palestinian organizations and political parties. Two terms need further definition: armistice violations and armistice line violations. As explained above, during the years of this collection, Israel was in a de jure state of war with most of its neighbors. Due to this state of war, no international borders existed, only armistice lines. An armistice, not a cease-fire, governed the conduct of the belligerents across the armistice lines. While the State Department used the term "borders," this was not completely accurate. In the Subject Index and the Reel Index, the term armistice violation denotes armed conflict across the armistice line. This conflict could be an accidental discharge of a weapon or coordinated weapons fire. The term armistice line violation denotes a physical violation of the armistice line, either accidental or willful. In many cases, civilian vehicles violated the lines, but a number of the instances were military vehicles and personnel.

Other collections of interest from LexisNexis include Confidential British Foreign Office Correspondence: Palestine and Transjordan, 1940–1946 and Palestine, 1947–1948. This collection contains the correspondence directed to the British Foreign Office by diplomats in the British mandatory areas. Of interest for scholars of the greater Middle East, LexisNexis offers Confidential U.S. State Department Central Files: Middle East Studies, a collection that includes documents pertaining to Egypt, Iran, Syria, Iraq, and other countries in the region.

SOURCE NOTE

Microfilmed from the holdings of the National Archives, College Park, Maryland, Record Group 59: Records of the Department of State, Central Foreign Policy Files, Subject-Numeric Files, February 1963–1966. The Subject-Numeric File categories included in this microfilm publication are Economic, Political, and Defense. The specific subject categories are AID (all types of aid), CSM (Communism), DEF (Defense), INT (Intelligence), and POL (Political Affairs and Relations).

EDITORIAL NOTE

The Subject-Numeric Files for February 1963 through July 1973 are arranged by subject-numeric categories, not by country. Therefore, some file folders will contain multiple subject categories. In addition, some folders will have more than one country represented by a single subject category.

LexisNexis has microfilmed all available documents relating to the subject categories listed above for the State Department's country designation for Palestine-Israel. Only exact duplicates have been excluded. In addition to the documents, LexisNexis has filmed file folders when possible, and has microfilmed the documents as they are arranged at the National Archives. A small number of Document Withdrawal Sheets exist in the files and have been filmed. Withdrawal sheets itemize documents that have been withdrawn from the files by the National Archives staff for national security reasons. Withdrawal sheets note as much pertinent information as possible such as the date of the document, the sender and recipient, and the subject of the withdrawn item.

STATE DEPARTMENT RECORDS CLASSIFICATION SYSTEM, FEBRUARY 1963–JULY 1973

Essential to the effective administration of the State Department and its overseas posts is the management of records. In keeping with the State Department's program to improve and modernize its administrative processes, the department developed a new comprehensive records classification system in February–March 1963 (used until July 1973).

This new uniform file system enabled users to file and find material rapidly—the usefulness of recorded information being largely dependent upon the logical arrangement of records. The new system applied to both official and working files.

The new system was based on several years of research and embodied many substantial contributions made by departmental and overseas personnel. An effort had been made to provide sufficient flexibility and subject matter coverage to meet the needs of offices and posts both large and small.

A. PURPOSE AND SCOPE

The new Records Classification System embodied a uniform official file system to be used throughout the department and its overseas posts. It was intended for use by operating offices as well as by departmental and post central files operations. The new system did not apply to certain types of case files, however, such as official personnel files, security investigative files, voucher files, and so forth. Offices continued to maintain chronological files where necessary or desirable.

B. ARRANGEMENT AND CONTENT

1. Subject File Outlines

The attached file outlines [provided by LexisNexis beginning on page xvii] comprise the new file system. They were arranged within seven broad subject matter areas (known earlier as classes), with each including specific subdivisions of related secondary and tertiary code symbols.

2. Special Instructions

a. International Organizations and Conferences

This system provided a special method for handling records accumulated in large quantities by offices that were primarily interested in a specific organization or conference rather than in the subject matter with which it dealt. Use of this special feature of the new file system afforded such offices a method for organizing this type of record material to meet their own reference needs within the framework of the new system. It proved of particular use to the Bureau of International Organization Affairs and to United States Missions to international organizations, such as the U.S. United Nations Delegation.

b. Commercial Officers

This instruction to the system was prepared in cooperation with the Department of Commerce for the special guidance of commercial officers in their use of the new file system. It provided for pre-coding of commercial-economic reports with the appropriate subject matter code symbols.

c. Peace Corps Representatives

This instruction to the system was prepared in cooperation with the Peace Corps for the guidance of its field representatives in records organization and maintenance. It prescribed the use of the appropriate administrative subject outlines for Peace Corps records administration.

d. U.S. Information Service (USIS)

Special subject designations were developed in cooperation with the U.S. Information Agency for use by those posts at which USIS files were maintained by the post's Central Records Unit. These designations were included in the Culture & Information subject outline.

C. TYPE OF SYSTEM

1. Subject-Numeric System

The new uniform file system was of the subject-numeric type. It was selected because of the flexibility that it provided for expansion purposes and the simplicity of file designations for marking purposes. A mnemonic symbol was selected for each of the fifty-five primary subjects for which file outlines had been developed. These symbols ranged from one to four letters in length and had been chosen because of their meaning or obvious relationship to the subject matter for which they stood. In some cases the symbol was identical with an office symbol (e.g., PPT for Passports & Citizenship, AV for Aviation (Civil)). In other cases the key letters in the primary subject constituted the symbol (e.g., CON for Consular Affairs (General), REF for Refugees & Migration, AGR for Agriculture (General)).

While many small offices used the primary subjects alone, larger offices required further breakdowns of the primary subjects for more detailed subject matter coverage. Simple serial numbers were assigned to subject breakdowns at both the secondary and tertiary level. A paper relating to the subject of agricultural production in general, for example, was classified AGR 12; a paper dealing with technological advances in agricultural production was AGR 12-1. The most detailed subdivision contained no more than four digits, making for a relatively simple file designation. A Sample Reel Index entry with Subject-Numeric Codes is on page xxix.

2. Use of Identical Numbers for Similar Subject

As an additional aid, the same number was assigned to similar secondary and tertiary subjects appearing in different subject file outlines. In most outlines the first five secondary subjects were standard (e.g., General Policy, Plans, and Programs; General Reports and Statistics; Organizations and Conferences; Agreements and Treaties; and Laws and Regulations). This same principle was applied to other similar or related subjects (e.g., Communist Bloc activities in aid, trade, and educational and cultural fields were assigned a “6” number—AID 6, FT 6, EDU 6, respectively; production and consumption was assigned a “12” number in the various industry outlines—AGR 12, INCO 12, PET 12).

3. Expansion of Existing Subjects

While no attempt was made to provide breakdowns for subject matter beyond the tertiary level, there were cases in which an office might want or need to subdivide a secondary or tertiary subject alphabetically by name, geographic location, or other appropriate breakdown. Papers relating to visits by foreign dignitaries, for example, were subdivided by name (e.g., POL 7 Visits—Adenauer); papers relating to a trade fair by location (e.g., TP 8 Fairs—Moscow); or papers relating to a thermal power project by type (e.g., FSE 12 Electric Power—Thermal).

D. SPECIAL FEATURES

1. Flexibility

Flexibility was an important feature of the uniform file system. The new system embodied an unusual amount of flexibility by providing users with several methods of arranging material according to their specific requirements. Three important areas of choice are indicated below:

a. Subject vs. Geographic Arrangement

Within each subject file outline, where appropriate, alternative ways of arranging material by subject or area/country were possible. An office interested only in a specific subject without regard to country selected the method of arrangement described above. An office that was primarily interested in specific subject matter but with a secondary concern for a geographic area or country selected the method described in Instruction "C" (Type of System). A geographic bureau or other office primarily concerned with a specific country used the method of arranging first by country and thereunder by subject described in Instruction "B" (Arrangement and Content).

b. Treatment of International Organizations and Conferences

Most offices accumulated a varying amount of material on international organizations and conferences in which the U.S. government was represented or participated. The interests of each office and its responsibility for international organization and conference activities determined the amount of record material that it accumulated and the method by which it arranged material to meet user needs.

An office that had a limited interest in such organizations and conferences and accumulated a relatively small quantity of papers probably found the "3" (Organizations and Conferences) classification within the appropriate subject outline adequate. An office that had a major interest in and responsibility for an organization, such as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), or the World Health Organization (WHO), however, adopted the method of arrangement described in Instruction “D” (Special Features). Under this arrangement a special subject file by title of organization was set up under the appropriate subject outline, using any of the secondary or tertiary breakdowns as necessary.

The Bureau of International Organization Affairs, special missions to international organizations, and other offices that accumulated a large volume of material on a specific organization or conference used the special instruction method of arrangement. This instruction contained a standard list of administrative subjects common to international organizations and conferences. It also provided a unique method of arranging substantive program material relating to the specific organization or conference by selecting appropriate subjects, permitting an organizational approach within the framework of a uniform subject system.

c. Treatment of Industries and Commodities

Because of the importance of the commercial-economic reporting program, special attention was given to the treatment of industries and commodities under the new file system. Specific subject outlines were developed for the most significant industries, such as Agriculture (General), Fuels & Energy, Petroleum, Telecommunications, and Transportation. With the exception of Agriculture (General), these industry outlines covered the related commodities and products as well.

To take care of the large number of other industries, commodities, products, and specific agricultural crops, an alphabetical guide was developed as an adjunct to the Industries & Commodities (General) outline. This list, referred to as INCO (specific), provided offices with a simple method of filing materials on specific commodities, regardless of whether they were in their natural or manufactured state.

Instructions preceding the alphabetical listing offered users a choice of methods of arrangement within the list. One office may have preferred to group all minerals and metals together, for example, while another office may have found it preferable to file by the specific mineral or metal.

2. Detailed Instructions (Miscellaneous)

In addition to the instructions above, alternative methods of arrangement, detailed statements, or explanations of the coverage of specific secondary and tertiary breakdowns of the primary subject were provided on an ad hoc basis. Specific cross-references to related subject matter within the same or in other outlines were also indicated. Classifiers found these instructions useful in determining proper file designations, particularly in the case of subject matter that may not have been familiar to them.

3. Country Symbols

A list of standard country abbreviations was used for coding papers relating to specific countries. See page xix for list.

SAMPLE REEL INDEX ENTRIES

Entries in the Reel Index refer to specific documents within Confidential U.S. State Department Central Files, Palestine-Israel, February 1963–1966. The documents are arranged by the Subject File Outlines noted in the “State Department Records Classification System, February 1963–July 1973,” on page xi. In order to improve access to some subject categories, LexisNexis has included selected “major topics” (enclosed in brackets) on the line below the subject description. In addition, for categories that are over one hundred pages, LexisNexis has subdivided these groups by month and year.

The four-digit number on the far left represents the frame number at which a particular Subject-Numeric Classification begins. This is followed by the Subject-Numeric symbol, a country code, and an explanation of the Subject-Numeric Classification. The sample below provides a description of the arrangement of the information in this guide.

REEL INDEX

Entries in this index refer to specific documents within Confidential U.S. State Department Central Files, Palestine-Israel, February 1963–1966, Part 1: Political, Governmental, and National Defense Affairs. These documents are arranged by the Subject File Outlines noted in the “State Department Records Classification System, February 1963–July 1973,” on page xi. See the Sample Subject File and Reel Index entries highlighted on page xxix for a description of the arrangement of the information in this guide. For some subjects, LexisNexis has included additional topics (enclosed in brackets) following the subject description. In addition, for those subjects numbering more than one hundred pages, LexisNexis has subdivided these groupings chronologically by month and year.

LexisNexis has filmed these documents as they are filed at the National Archives. In some cases, there are documents that appear to have been misclassified by the Department of State. LexisNexis has retained the original subject-numeric symbol and, within brackets, enclosed a different subject-numeric symbol and its accompanying subject citation. LexisNexis has microfilmed the documents as they are arranged in the original collection, even when it is apparent that a document has been misfiled.

Many Reel Index entries include country abbreviations. A Country Abbreviations list can be found on page xix of this guide.

SUBJECT INDEX

The following index is a guide to the major subjects and geographic locations in this microform publication. The first number after an entry refers to the reel, while the four-digit number following the colon refers to the frame number at which the subject begins. Hence, 22: 0399 directs the researcher to Frame 0399 of Reel 22. By referring to the Reel Index, which constitutes the initial segment of this guide, the researcher will find topics listed in the order in which they appear on the film. This index uses the terminology and spellings used in the original documents.
